1. Background

About the ECOWAS Rice Agenda

In West Africa, the consumption of high-quality rice outstrips local supply resulting in continued importation of milled rice from Asia to meet demands. Increasing population growth, urbanization and changing consumer preferences have further widened the gap in supply, and no country in West Africa has been able to achieve rice self-sufficiency despite having the right agro-climatic conditions and water availability to meet regional demand. The region is one of the vulnerable regions globally, grappling with significant challenges stemming from its climate, demographic trends, institutional frameworks, economic conditions, environmental issues, and subsistence methods. With a population exceeding 360 million, over 55% of West Africans reside in rural areas, relying heavily on natural resources for their socio-economic development. In response to this, the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) has made strong commitments to transforming agriculture and enhancing food security and resilience.

In 2014, the authorities of the ECOWAS Commission adopted the ‘Rice Offensive’, a strategic framework to engender a sustainable and sustained revival of rice cultivation in West Africa and to provide support for the National Rice Development Strategies of Member States towards achieving rice self-sufficiency by 2025. To accelerate the implementation of the Rice Offensive, a Regional Rice Action Plan was developed in 2020 to ensure that the region meets the goal. To achieve this, ECOWAS has aligned with several development partners including the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, GIZ, the African Development Bank, the Islamic Development Bank, FCDO, AGRA, JICA/CARD, World Bank, and others. Together, a regional “ECOWAS Rice Observatory” (ERO) was jointly established as multi-stakeholder platform. ERO, housed at the ECOWAS Commission in Abuja, Nigeria, coordinates rice sector-related programs, public/private investments, and policy recommendations for key decision-makers. At the same time, national rice platforms are being established, comprised primarily of private sector stakeholders across the value chain, in addition to representation from research, government, and civil society to coordinate country-specific investments and policies.

More recently, with the Rice Offensive and Regional Action Plan (2020 - 2025) nearing its terms, the ECOWAS Commission has developed a Regional Rice Roadmap (2025 - 2035) with the support of its partners. It is an extension of the Rice Offensive and a unified framework to guide investments and targeted interventions in the development of the rice sector in West Africa for the next ten (10) years to achieve rice self-sufficiency.

In response to these challenges, the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) has made strong commitments to transforming agriculture and enhancing food security resilience. To address these priorities, ECOWAS has secured funding from the African Development Bank to implement the Rice Resilient Value Chains Development Project (REWARD) in West Africa.

Brief overview of the REWARD Programme

REWARD, a multinational investment initiative totaling approximately UA 500 million, stands as a regional rice development program to be financed by the AfDB over the 15 West African countries, namely Benin, Burkina Faso, Cape Verde, Côte d'Ivoire, The Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Liberia, Mali, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, and Togo. This includes (i) 14 National Projects (no in-country investment in Cape Verde since there is no rice production but it is impacted by regional policies and regulations for rice sub-sector) focused on rice production, productivity, transformation, and marketing; and (ii) two (2) regional operations to be executed by specific institutions and agencies: one led by ECOWAS, which will support policy and regulatory reforms and harmonization at both regional and national levels, and one led by AfricaRice for regional technical support to foster innovation in rice value chains.

Alignment of REWARD with Dakar 2. In January 2023, Heads of State from 34 African countries gathered in Dakar for the Summit jointly organized by the African Union (AU) and the African Development Bank (AfDB) on the theme "Feeding Africa: Food Sovereignty and Resilience". The Dakar Declaration resulting from the Summit was endorsed by a resolution of the 36th AU Summit in February 2023 by which the Heads of State committed to (i) sustainably increase the production and productivity of agricultural value chains primarily oriented towards the achievement of food sovereignty as defined in the Food and Nutrition Compacts, (ii) strengthen access to public finance and development partners, carry out reforms favourable to private sector investment and (iii) ensure the implementation of the Compacts under the aegis of National Presidential Councils according to a set schedule. The review of the Compacts revealed that rice has been praised by Heads of State as a major strategic commodity for their food sovereignty. In this respect, REWARD is one of the ECOWAS and AfDB's flagship operational responses to the financing of the Compacts of the 15 ECOWAS countries.

REWARD is designed in a group-based approach considering Grantees' / Borrowers' readiness. The first group includes 2 countries and the 2 regional organizations, namely: Bissau-Guinea, the Gambia, AfricaRice and ECOWAS (REWARD-G1). It has been approved by the Board of Governors of the African Development Bank on 20 November 2024. Each national and regional investment operation is implemented by its own Project Implementation Unit (PIU) under its own Executing Agency and is independent on a fiduciary standpoint. As a multinational programme, an overall activity framework is overarching the REWARD, structured around 4 components, namely:

Component 1 (country level): Develop sustainable and climate-resilient rice production systems to ensure adequate quantity and quality for millers, with 3 sub-components: Sub-component 1.1 - Develop sustainable and climate-resilient infrastructure and management services in rice production systems; Sub-component 1.2 - Improve availability and access to quality inputs, mechanization services, and knowledge for climate-resilient agriculture; and Sub-component 1.3 - Regional technical support to foster innovation in rice value chains (implemented by AfricaRice as country support).

Component 2 (country level): Promotion of rice processing and marketing of competitive locally produced rice, with 4 sub-components: Sub-component 2.1 - Develop/modernize processing infrastructure and enhance capacities of small farmers and commercial actors throughout the value chain; Sub-component 2.2 - Develop information systems, innovative technologies (including digital), and consumer-oriented labels to improve market access; Sub-component 2.3: Promote private sector investment by supporting businesses and improving funding availability throughout the value chain; and Sub-component 2.4: Regional technical support to foster innovation in rice value chains (implemented by AfricaRice as country support).

Component 3 (Country + Regional level: ECOWAS regional policy support) -

Support policy and regulatory reforms, regional harmonization, for a competitive rice value chain against imports, with 2 sub-components: Sub-component 3.1 - Support to national policy and regulatory reforms for rice value chains competitive to imports; and Sub-component 3.2 -Support to regional policy and regulatory reforms, and harmonization at ECOWAS level, for rice value chains competitive to imports (sub-component 3.2 of the REWARD multinational program being the actual REWARD-ECOWAS regional project).

Component 4 (countries, AfricaRice and ECOWAS): Program coordination and management, as discussed and agreed with ECOWAS.
